UC BERKELEY RETIREMENT CENTER NEWSLETTER

Reflections by the Center's Executive Director

It is hard to believe that the Retirement Center is beginning the tenth year of its expanded programming and services. Many of the same pioneering individuals who had formed the Retiree and Emeriti Associations at Cal in the late 70's and early 80's were also instrumental in developing a support structure and creating resources so that the Center could serve all retired faculty, staff and surviving spouse beneficiaries. Now, the Center serves almost 14,000 constituents from three institutions in the UC family: UC Berkeley; UC Office of the President; and the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory.

Over these years, we have worked to extend into retirement discounted rates and privileged access to campus programs and services through our Cal Connection program (pgs.2-3). Our Learning in Retirement (LIR) program, begun in 2000, has attracted over 1,000 unduplicated Center participants (p.4). Your recent financial contributions, the dedicated efforts of board members and LIR creators Donald A. Riley and Melvin Webber, and the donated time of emeriti and active faculty allow us to offer these programs at no cost. The interest in our basic computer classes, developed by a retiree committee and taught by Center staff, has been so great that we have added intermediate and advanced sessions (p.5). Since 1999, we have offered active faculty and staff nearing retirement a comprehensive eight-part pre-retirement planning course that has educated many and informed their transition out of a full-time career. The Center has also developed the Retiree Work Opportunities program (RWO) that provides a free, web-based way to connect retired faculty or staff to campus hiring managers who have part-time, temporary project needs (p.6). Through this newsletter, we try to keep you up to date about campus programs, services and campus leadership changes that we think might be of interest to you (pgs.6-7).

In addition, we are always creating ways to enhance efficiency and service. For example, this past year we accomplished a major database restructuring so that what used to take two weeks to accomplish manually is now automated and takes only one-half hour. Similarly, we have automated our class registration system to provide you with better service. For seven years, a Center committee has worked to bring multi-level retirement housing close to campus; hopefully this may come to fruition soon. Too, Center staff serves on campus, systemwide and national committees to represent the concerns of emeriti, retirees and surviving spouses and to reaffirm their contributions, past and present, to the Academy. The Center has also served as a training ground for over 20 graduate student interns and undergraduate work-study students, some of whom have changed the direction of their study to aging or social services after their time with us. And, as the fourth Center of its kind in the country, we have provided technical assistance to other campuses across the United States and Canada and given leadership to the birth of an international association of retirement organizations in higher education.

Your contributions of time and money have been a critical factor in our success. When state budget woes threatened our survival, we were able to continue our programming despite 20% cuts. As those cuts have not been restored to our budget, we continue to depend on your gifts. Our donor honor roll recognizes your generosity (pgs.8-9).

It has been my pleasure and privilege, as well as the Center staff's, to be of service to you. We look forward to our continued work on your behalf.

*In memory of Austin Ranney
Board member, supporter, and great friend of the Center*

Center Sponsored Programs and Events

LEARNING IN RETIREMENT

There are no enrollment fees, but advance registration is required; call the Center. Course location will be provided in your written confirmation.

Music

Organized by Professor Donald A. Riley, Department of Psychology

We are privileged to hear from three students of music who will approach that topic in different, but related ways. First, Professor Emeritus Eugene Commins, Department of Physics, will discuss "The Physics of Music." His lecture, which will include demonstrations, will lay the ground for our second lecture, which deals with making music in a special way. That special way is the subject of the lecture by Jeff Davis, University Carillonneur. He will discuss the history of carillons from the early days through our own instrument and will conclude his lecture with a demonstration on the University Carillon. The third lecture in this series will be given by David Wessel, Professor of Music and Director of The Center for New Music & Audio Technologies (CNMAT). His lecture will address recent advances in our understanding of music making, music perception, and of brain function during the creation of and listening to music.

Fridays, times vary by date

September 29	3pm-5pm	Professor Emeritus Eugene D. Commins: "The Physics of Music"
October 6	4:30pm-6:30pm	Jeff Davis: "The University Carillon"
October 13	3pm-5pm	Professor David Wessel: "Recent Advances in Music Cognition"

Election Symposium

(Co-Sponsored by The Faculty Club and the UC Berkeley Retirement Center)

Organized by Gerald Lubenow, editor, Berkeley Public Policy Press

Thursday, October 19, 5pm (wine and cheese reception to follow)

Panelists: Professor Nelson W. Polsby and Mr. Mervin Field

Moderator: Gerald Lubenow

On Thursday, October 19, a pair of distinguished political analysts will discuss the upcoming election and respond to questions from the audience. Their comments and analysis will address California races and issues as well as the national battle for control of the U.S. Congress. They will touch on such issues as the impact of the war in Iraq and the economy, the nationalization of state campaigns, the framing of issues, and the impact of turnout among an electorate that seems increasingly disaffected by recent political developments.

Nelson W. Polsby is Heller Professor of Political Science, former director of the Institute of Governmental Studies, and the author of more than a score of books on American politics, including, most recently, How Congress Evolves and Presidential Elections. Mervin Field is founder of the Field Poll, California's leading political polling firm, and a veteran analyst of state and national political trends. Gerald Lubenow, editor of the Berkeley Public Policy Press and former bureau chief in San Francisco and London for Newsweek Magazine, will moderate.

Global Warming – What Can We Do?

Organized by Professor Lawrence Waldron, Department of Environmental Science, Policy and Management

This Learning in Retirement course will be concerned with what can be done to stabilize carbon dioxide (CO<sub>2</sub>) levels that have been rising at an increasing rate, particularly over the past 50 years. While CO<sub>2</sub> is not the only gas implicated in global warming, it is the most significant one because of the magnitude of its increasing concentration and anthropogenic origin. The four sessions will not present an exhaustive catalog of ameliorative measures, but will analyze several approaches that have potential for reducing CO<sub>2</sub> emissions.

Tuesdays, 3pm-5pm

October 31	Professor Alexander Farrell: "Transportation Fuels in the Twenty-First Century"
November 7	Dr. Jayant Sathaye: "The Role of Land Use Change and Forestry in the Carbon Cycle"

Vision

Organized by Professor Karen De Valois, School of Optometry and Helen Wills Neuroscience Institute

The visual system is our most highly developed sensory system. Current estimates are that about a third of the cortex of the brain is devoted to visual processing. Though vision seems instantaneous and trivially easy, it is arguably the most complex thing we do.

In four sessions we will discuss the ways in which the brain analyzes the information collected by the eyes. Karen K. De Valois, Professor of Psychology, Vision Science and Optometry, will discuss color vision and motion vision; Dennis Levi, Professor of Optometry and Vision Science and Dean, School of Optometry, will talk about spatial vision; Anthony Adams, Professor of Optometry and Vision Science, will discuss clinical vision problems. We will consider questions such as how color vision varies across species and across individuals, how the brain extracts and encodes color, how the visual system analyzes spatial patterns, what kinds of specialized mechanisms we have evolved to see motion, and what clinical vision problems are more likely to occur as we age.

Mondays, 2pm-4pm

November 13	Professor Karen De Valois: "Color Vision"
November 20	Professor Dennis Levi: "Spatial Vision"
November 27	Professor Karen De Valois: "Motion Vision"
December 4	Professor Anthony Adams: "Clinical Vision Problems"

RETIREE WORK OPPORTUNITIES PROGRAM (RWO)

Update on RWO Program

We are quite pleased with the successful response to the RWO website this past year, which was featured in the lead article in the August 31st Berkeleyan.

There are now over 400 hiring managers and retirees using the website to connect with each other about potential work opportunities. With the new fiscal year now underway, it's a good time for hiring managers to fund temporary or part-time postings or to accomplish short-term, project-based assignments by hiring an experienced UC retiree.

Whether you're a retiree or a hiring manager, you may be interested to know that the website offers the capability of keyword searches on retirees' profiles/resumes. This is a quick and effective way for managers to narrow down their search to candidates with specific skills and interests rather than having to browse through dozens of profiles. For instance, the manager might use certain system names such as HRMS or BAIRS as keywords to search for retirees with experience using those systems, or they might search on more generic keywords such as "project management," "writing," "accounting," "counseling," "teaching," "human resources," "engineering," or "research."

As a retiree creating or updating your personal profile and/or resume, consider what key words you might use to locate someone with just your kind of expertise. Think about the work you did at UC in the past and also any new experience (paid or unpaid) and interests you've developed since your retirement. And if you've recently finished a temporary campus job, be sure to update your profile to include any new knowledge and skills you gained on that job.

If you have questions about how to update your website profile, please contact gjparra@berkeley.edu. The Retirement Center also plans to offer a resume-writing refresher workshop. Watch for details in future CenterPiece articles.

We have recently updated the security features of the website. To register as a new user, contact the Retirement Center at (510)642-5461 or email gjparra@berkeley.edu.

Berkeley Art Museum Tour

Semina Culture: Wallace Berman And His Circle

The exhibition Semina Culture revolves around Wallace Berman—artist, poet, and catalyst for a group of mid-twentieth-century artists commonly referred to as Beat. Between 1955 and 1964, Berman published nine issues of the unbound magazine Semina. Join us for guided tours and/or special programs such as the Curator's Talk on the opening day of the exhibit, Wednesday, October 18, given by Senior Curator Constance Lewallen, who assembled this exhibit, or the Poets' and Curators' Tribute on Sunday, October 29, following a guided tour, at which several of the artists featured in the exhibit will be present and speak about their works.

The CenterPiece is published by the UC Berkeley Retirement Center, which reports to the Office of the Vice Provost for Academic Affairs and Faculty Welfare. The CenterPiece is distributed to annuitants of UC Berkeley, the UC Office of the President, and Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory.

On July 1st, George W. Breslauer, a political science professor and Russia specialist, became the campus's executive vice chancellor and provost.

Breslauer, 60, who has been on the UC Berkeley faculty for 35 years, received his A.B., A.M. and Ph.D. from the University of Michigan, joining the UC Berkeley political science faculty in 1971 while completing his Ph.D. thesis. He specialized in studies of Soviet leaders and after 1991, leadership in the new Russia. In addition to teaching, he has held many leadership positions, including directing the Center for Slavic and East European Studies and chairing the political science department. Most recently, he was appointed last August as the executive dean of the College of Letters & Science.

Breslauer said his new job will be an "exciting challenge" that is four-pronged: maintaining the excellence of the undergraduates, the graduate students, the staff and the faculty.

Nathan Brostrom New Vice Chancellor—Administration

(adapted from Berkleyan article written by Marie Felde; for complete article see http://www.berkeley.edu/news/media/releases/2005/12/21\_vcjob.shtml)

In this position, he manages the campus's annual operating budget of more than $1.3 billion and is also responsible for a division that is the largest provider of services to campus staff and a significant provider of services to UC Berkeley students.

Chancellor Birgeneau said of Brostrom, who holds a master's degree in public and international affairs from Princeton University and a B.A. from Stanford University, "In Nathan Brostrom we have a recognized expert in public finance, a creative and enthusiastic manager and a leader who cares deeply about the public mission of this great university, including most especially our historic commitment to academic excellence and social justice."
