About Community Technology Network

Receiving free technology training in the Bay Area has never been easier. Community Technology Network (CTN) partners with community based organizations to deliver free technology training in 30+ locations throughout San Francisco and Oakland. CTN technology training is delivered by skilled volunteers, who are supported by CTN training and resources.

Volunteers help older adults learn how to communicate by email and Skype, find information on the internet, access essential services online, develop online social networks, and have fun with computers and the internet. No experience required – just a working knowledge of everyday computing and a desire to help others.
